Anya has a broad practice spanning privacy, media, technology, public, sports and employment law. In recognition of her work as a leading media and privacy specialist, Anya was named "Media, Defamation, Privacy and Data Protection Silk of the Year" in the 2021 Chambers & Partners Bar Awards. Anya is named as a Leading Silk in the directories in recognition of her work in the privacy, media and employment spheres. She is listed as a "Star Individual" in Chambers & Partners in recognition of her leading role the data privacy field, and is also recognised as leading silk in the field of data privacy class actions. Anya was also named in the Lawyer's "Hot 100 Lawyers 2019". Anya has a special interest in technology disputes and has acted across a wide array of cutting-edge technology-based cases, in the regulatory and civil litigation spheres, and also before the Administrative Court. Anya's current cases range from very large-scale data privacy class actions; to heavy and publicly important regulatory cases fought before the First-Tier and Upper Tribunals; to weighty judicial reviews involving matters such as the application of the Broadcasting Code and the legality of the police's use of live facial recognition; to appellate cases raising significant public interest issues, such as the application of anonymity principles in cases involving children and the application of GDPR principles to advertising practices. Anya has been described in the directories as a "phenomenal advocate and a brilliant legal brain" as someone who is "devastating in cross-examination", "a first rate team leader" and "a real star".

Has a super-quick mind, gives clear and sensible advice, instils huge confidence in solicitors and lay clients, and is practical and pragmatic. She also grasps complicated factual circumstances very quickly, and is one of the most talented barristers I have had the pleasure to work with.

CHAMBERS & PARTNERS

Expertise

Sport

Anya has a burgeoning sports law practice.

Alexander Zverev v Ace

[2020] EWHC 3513 (CH)

Anya recently acted for one of the world's leading tennis players, Alexander Zverev, in connection with the restraint of trade claim he brought against his former agent, Ace. The case, which was widely reported in sporting circles, ended with Ace conceding the entire claim, together with its own multi-million pound counter-claim in December 2020, the day before the trial of the action. See also the judgment of Hochhauser J on the issue of whether Ace's expert could be compelled to disclose documents/information concerning alleged 'comparator' contracts of other tennis players

Dillian Whyte v CBS Interactive Inc & Boxing Scene

(2021, ONGOING)

Acting for the publisher/defendant in the context of a privacy claim brought by a leading British boxer in respect of the publication of information concerning a drugs test; judgment on open justice/handling of confidential schedules awaited

Project Red Card

(2021)

Anya is acting for one of the parties involved in this project, which concerns the legality of handling of statistical sports data.
